

Regional Transportation Plan

What is the Regional Transportation Plan (RTP)?

The Southern California Association of Governments' 2008 Regional Transportation Plan (RTP) is a 30-year plan that provides a vision for transportation investments in the SCAG region using an assessment of growth and economic trends over the next two decades.

How will the upcoming RTP impact me?

The RTP provides long-range regional strategies to enhance the movement of people, goods and information. By doing so, the region may enhance its economic growth, international trade and improve the environment and quality of life. The wide range of issues and impacts of the RTP will be experienced by all citizens of the SCAG region.

What information is included in the RTP?

SCAG's 2008 RTP is a required document for the region to qualify for future federal, state, and local funding of projects. Some of the topics covered in the document include:

- ◆ Aviation and Ground Access Improvements
- ◆ Environmental Mitigation
- ◆ Goods Movement System
- ◆ High-Speed Regional Transport
- ◆ Highways and Arterials
- ◆ Land Use/Growth Forecast
- ◆ Non-Motorized Transportation
- ◆ Public Transit
- ◆ Transportation Finance
- ◆ Transportation Safety and Security

Who collaborates with SCAG in developing the RTP?

Input and consensus are crucial when developing a plan that impacts the efficient movement of people and goods across six counties and 187 cities. Guiding SCAG staff through development are numerous task forces, local governments and subregions, county transportation commissions, Caltrans, state and federal agencies, environmental and business communities, tribal governments, non-profit groups, the general public and others.

When is the RTP scheduled to be adopted?

SCAG expects to release a draft of the 2008 RTP for public comment in early November. After reviewing and considering all comments received, SCAG will adopt and release the final RTP in the spring of 2008.
